

YORKER ASKS COURT TO STUDY MILK SALE CASE

The conviction of a York dairy truck driver before Justice of the Peace C. S. Straley, New Oxford, who imposed a $100 fine and the costs on a charge of selling milk at a price below that set by the state, has been carried to the Adams county court of common pleas for review.

In a petition filed Tuesday at the office of Prothonotary C. Arthur Brame, counsel for William L. Eisenhart, who states he is a driver for the R. H. Eisenhart dairy in York, asked the court to issue a writ on the New Oxford justice to send his records into court for review.

The writ has been issued and served upon Justice Straley.

In the petition filed Tuesday, Eisenhart states that he was charged by Mahlon J. McIntyre, Harrisburg, with having sold milk "willfully and unlawfully" on June 20 in Hamilton township at prices less than those prescribed in a general order issued from Harrisburg under authority vested in the milk control commission.

The $100 fine was imposed by Justice Straley on July 6, the petition states, and claims further that the justice was without authority to impose the fine in that case. It also is asserted in the petition that the record in the case is "defective" and because of the flaws in the case the sentence should be set aside.

Commissioners Plan Office Changes in Court House

The county agent, M. T. Hartman, and Miss Mildred L. Adams, the home economics worker, with their secretary, will take over the first office on the south side of the court house corridor now occupied by the county Red Cross chapter, the state nurse and the county probation officers.

J. Herbert Weikert, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Weikert, 69 East Middle street, has been notified of his appointment as registrar of vital statistics for the Gettysburg district, effective August 10.

LAWYER'S WILL GIVES $9,000 TO FRATERNITY HERE

The interest with which the late Samuel B. Meisenhelder, Esq., of York, followed the activities of Phi Delta Theta, his fraternity during his undergraduate days at Gettysburg college, is shown through the filing of his will in York on Tuesday in which the fraternity is to receive two bequests totaling $9,000.

To the trustees of Pennsylvania Beta chapter of Phi Delta Theta he bequeathed $4,000 on the mortgage against the chapter house at Gettysburg college on condition that the alumni raise the difference between the amount due on the mortgage and this bequest plus the bequest of about $3,100 made by John C. Meisenhelder.

The will leaves $5,000 to be held in trust by the York Trust company, the income to be paid semi-annually to Pennsylvania Beta of Phi Delta Theta to be used for scholarships for members of the chapter as the trustees may deem best. If for any reason the chapter shall cease to exist the trust fund is to become part of the residuary estate.

The residue is left in trust with the York Trust company, the income to be paid to his brothers, Dr. Edmund W. Meisenhelder, and his sister, Mary E. Meisenhelder. Upon their deaths the fund is to go to the children of Doctor Meisenhelder.

The preliminary estimate of the value of the estate is $50,000 and upward in personal property and $10,000 in real estate.

The will also directs that $1,000 be given to Union Lutheran church in York or so much of it as is necessary to erect a statue in the niche of the church in memory of his mother.

Sight of firemen brought him down after an hour.

Still a Battlefield, But Only for Golfers

Petersburg, Va., Aug. 2 (AP)—If a Chamber of Commerce had a face, it would be red in this city.

A Lynchburg reporter scanning the Chamber's new directory glanced at what was labeled an air view of the Crater battlefield, which annually draws thousands of visitors and students of the history of the War Between the States.

Gradually those white spots on the picture brought visions of a niblick and the reporter wrote a story about the air view of the Virginia Beach golf course.

The Chamber blamed the directory for the error.

Margaret B. Borden, Gettysburg R. 4, filed a statement of claim Tuesday afternoon in the office of Prothonotary C. Arthur Brame in her suit against the Mutual Life Insurance company of New York.

RAINS HELP, BUT DROUGHT STILL RETARDS CROPS

Philadelphia, Aug. 2 (AP)—Heavy rains have relieved Pennsylvania's July drought conditions, the weather bureau reported today, but more rainfall is needed soon.

The bureau's crop report said the soil became so dry during 27 days of drought that the rain failed to soak in as much as would be necessary for the parched crops. Crops in 80 per cent of the state were benefited, however.

"The general effect was to freshen crops in general and start a better growth," the report said. "This is particularly noticeable in pastures and meadows."

"Corn is earing quite rapidly in the southern portion of the state and is mostly tasseled in the north."

"Wheat and rye threshing continue but are well advanced and will be finished shortly. Yields and quality are generally good."

"Oats harvest is in progress, and some threshing has been done from the fields. The crop is generally light, but there are a few regions where the rainfall was such that a fair crop is reported."

"Early potatoes are ripening and are being dug."

"Truck crops in immature stages will benefit from the rains, but those that were ready for use are permanently damaged, and quality in many instances is poor."

"Tobacco has suffered from the drought and was growing slowly but is reported as making a better growth since the rains."

Apples are falling from the trees more than normally, but it is believed that the rains will check this action. The quality of the apples seems to be the best that Pennsylvania has had in several years.

15-Year-Old Boy Drowns At Dam in Marsh Creek; Taneytown H. S. Student

A swimming party ended tragically Tuesday evening when a 15-year-old Taneytown (Maryland) high school sophomore and musician drowned in Marsh creek at Natural dam, Freedom township.

The victim of the drowning was Calvin Franklin Hartsock, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Hartsock, Taneytown R. D. Following the practice session of the Junior Odd Fellows band in Taneytown Tuesday evening, young Hartsock, accompanied by Harry Baker, 17, and Guy Dayhoff, 19, both of Taneytown, went to Natural dam for a swim.

Unable to Swim
The party arrived at the dam about 9:30 o'clock and immediately entered the water. Franklin, who was said to have been unable to swim, was wading in the water when Baker noticed him fall forward on his face and disappear under the surface.

Baker called to other swimmers and persons on the banks of the stream for help. After about eight minutes from the time Franklin went under, his body was recovered by Paul Helwig, Gettysburg R. 1, who participated in the search.

The water was six feet deep where the drowning occurred.

Pulmotor Used
Efforts were made to revive Franklin by the use of artificial respiration and in the meantime a call was sent to the Warner hospital here for a pulmotor. Dr. William P. McKnight, of Gettysburg, who was at Marsh Creek Heights, near the scene of the accident, was called, but the boy was dead when he arrived. Dr. C. Harold Johnson, also of Gettysburg, was summoned to the scene, too. The pulmotor was placed in use there about 26 minutes. Persons at the scene worked over Franklin's body for an hour and a half before giving up hope of reviving him. He was the first bather to drown in Adams county this summer.

Dr. Edgar A. Miller, Adams county coroner, was notified of the accident. He went to the scene and after making an investigation attributed death to accidental drowning.

Brother Watched Search
Among those who watched the search for Franklin's body and were present while attempts were being made to revive him, was his brother, Kenneth Hartsock, who had been nearby when the accident happened. Kenneth was a member of a party of young people holding a wienner roast near the dam.

Franklin resided with his parents at Union Bridge, Maryland, before moving to the Taneytown vicinity about seven years ago. In addition to playing with the Odd Fellows band, he was a member of the Six orchestra that has been broadcasting over a Frederick radio station recently. He played the alto horn in the band and the guitar in the orchestra.

Carroll Hartsock, father of the accident victim, is a farmer. He also operates a restaurant in Taneytown.

Funeral on Friday
In addition to his parents and his brother, Kenneth, the deceased is survived by a sister, Marie Anna Mae, at home; his paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hartsock, Union Bridge, and his maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Singer, Woodstock, Maryland.

Funeral services Friday afternoon meeting at the late home at 1 o'clock, with further services from the Taneytown Reformed church. The Rev. T. W. Null, Taneytown, a former Episcopal pastor here, will officiate. Interment in the Beaver Dam cemetery, near Union Bridge.

London, Aug. 2 (AP)—Geoffrey Shakespeare, financial secretary of the admiralty, announced in the house of commons today that Britain would add 180 vessels, mostly smaller craft such as trawlers, to the 1939 naval construction program.

The additions, he said, would include 107 trawlers for mine-sweeping and anti-submarine work. Twenty of these would be specially built and the remainder purchased and converted.

The government also plans to construct 56 vessels of the whale packet type, some for service as patrol vessels and others for anti-submarine work.

Other new vessels would include ten big minesweepers, six boom defense vessels and one cable ship.

A floating dock to accommodate small craft up to 5,000 tons already has been purchased, he announced, adding that further additions will be disclosed later and provisions for meeting the cost will be made in a supplementary budget estimate.

British Ambassador Sir Robert Leslie Craige, meanwhile, was said to have threatened to discontinue the British-Japanese conference on Tientsin unless the Japanese placed the anti-British movement under control.

Official circles in London disclosed Britain had notified Japan that failure to halt the agitation was a violation of the understanding on which the Tokyo conference is based.

The British government, reported increasingly pessimistic over the possibilities of a successful conclusion to the Tokyo talks, was said to have been communicating with the United States, France and the British dominions on the far eastern situation.

Army Air Corps Celebrates 30th Anniversary Today

Washington, Aug. 2 (AP)—The Army air corps celebrated its 30th birthday anniversary today with mass flights throughout the United States, defense exercises over 1,500 miles of the west coast.

Amid these evidences of aviation progress in one generation, the air corps announced its second world record this week. A "flying fortress" Tuesday left Wright field at Dayton, Ohio, and streaked 625 miles at 259,398 miles an hour carrying a load of 11,023 pounds. Earlier, a similar plane reached an altitude of 8,200 feet with a payload of 15½ tons.

The record-breaking craft, being developed in the $300,000,000 air corps expansion program, bear little resemblance to the first American military airplane which a War department board accepted formally from Wilbur and Orville Wright 30 years ago.

It had made a successful trial flight from Fort Myer, across the Potomac from Washington, to Alexandria, Virginia, about five miles away, at a little more than 42 miles an hour. It returned at a little more than 47 miles an hour. The plane is displayed in the Smithsonian institution.

Today the Army could point to pursuit planes that make nearly 10 times that speed.

Simultaneously it could send out squadrons of airplanes over American cities and towns from nine air stations, with President Roosevelt giving the signal for departure.

The national demonstration centered on Wright field. Performance trials of standard Army combat airplanes, flights by tactical squadrons and a reunion of military and commercial aviation pioneers of the period ante-dating 1912 were on the program.

FATHER DIVINE ACQUIRES LAND

New York, Aug. 2 (AP)—The Daily News said today that Father Divine has a $15,000,000 fund to spend for land and that the dusky little Harlem messiah called God by his disciples was ready to take over two new "heavens" for his peace-chanting angels. The cult leader, the newspaper reported, merely had to sign the papers to acquire the 2,500-acre estate of William Goeliet in the Hudson Highlands back of Newburgh, New York — the biggest single piece of property so far acquired by the organization — and the stone mansion formerly owned by the late U. S. Ambassador Richard Washburn Child in Newport, Rhode Island.

HOOVER PORTRAIT ORDERED

Washington, Aug. 2 (AP)—Congress has approved the expenditure of $2,500 for an oil portrait of former President Herbert Hoover to be placed in the White House. The bill provides that the portrait shall be painted by an American artist.

SOLDIERS SURE OF PLENTY TO EAT IN VIRGINIA

Harrisburg, Aug. 2 (AP)—Pennsylvania's citizen-soldiers may get dirty necks, under combat conditions on the old battleground of Manassas, Virginia, next week, but they will have plenty to eat.

The 28th Division, from the Keystone state, will comprise roughly one-third of a force of about 23,000 men that will be poured into a comparatively small and sparsely-settled area. There won't be any too much water for drinking, cooking, washing, shaving, and scrubbing clothes. It may not be as bad as it was 21 years ago, when some of the veterans were knee-deep in the mud of war-time France; but conditions during the Army maneuvers are expected to approximate actual combat—with the exception of real bullets and "live" shells.

Pennsylvania's contingent has been ordered to take a minimum of personal effects. There will be few opportunities to have clothing laundered. Everything the men carry except the uniforms on their backs and their rifles will have to be kept in cotton barracks bags.

In the interest of comfort, the men may leave their neckties off and collars open on the way to and from Virginia and on maneuvers. But they'll have to wear them on visits to "town" and in the review before Governor James on August 11.

Most of the second week will be spent in "pup" tents that theoretically shelter two men each. Tail soldiers generally find their feet sticking out one end, which is all right except when it rains. The ground, covered with a raincoat, will be their bed; extra clothing, their pillow.

Whatever the discomforts of rugged life in the outdoors, the men are assured of eating well.

The quartermaster corps lists 69 varieties of food, most of it in tons. That will be issued to Pennsylvania's 8,500 men. Twenty-two tons of beef, 11 tons of butter, 53 tons of bread, nine tons of chicken, 12-128 dozen eggs, give an idea of the staples to be provided.

There are such delicacies as 3,356 gallons of ice cream, 62,934 oranges and 9,230 cans of jam.

DROP CHANGES AT VALLEY FORGE

Valley Forge, Pa., Aug. 2 (AP)—The Valley Forge park commission announced today plans for enlarging the historic shrine had been dropped at the request of Governor Arthur H. James.

The commission said it was informed by the governor that no funds were available now or in the near future for extending the park through 20 surrounding properties in Chester and Montgomery counties.

The enlargement plan was formulated in 1937. Condemnation proceedings had been underway for a year.

Bill Provides for Tenure Of Rural Mail Carriers

Washington, Aug. 2 (AP)—A bill to provide for a more permanent tenure for star route mail carriers was passed Tuesday by the senate and sent to the house.

The bill would allow the Postmaster General to renew regular contracts on such routes—usually in sparsely settled areas—for four years from the date of expiration "as often as the interests of the service may require."

It also would authorize the Postmaster General to allow additional compensation to star-route contractors for increased travel necessitated by road obstructions, bridge washouts or other reasons.

Chester County Enters Local Option Dispute

Coatesville, Pa., Aug. 2 (AP)—A temporary injunction, issued pending a hearing Monday, restrains the Chester county commissioners from putting the wet-dry issue on the ballot in 39 districts at the September primary.

Judge Ernest Harvey granted the injunction Tuesday to Walter Harley, counsel for four liquor and beer license holders. Harley's claim was the same as that put forward in several counties where the issue has arisen—that the requirement of 60 days between primary and election is being violated because the interval this year is only 57 days.

PENNIES FROM HEAVEN

Williamsport, Pa., Aug. 2 (AP)—"We've been saving our pennies for this," chorused James W. Kennedy, of Harrisburg, and Martha R. Grugan, of Williamsport, as they dumped 250 pennies before a marriage license clerk. The license cost $2.50. They'll get it Thursday—and then the penny-saving really begins.

STOLEN 'RING

Danville, Pa., Aug. 2 (AP)—Sexton Clarence Long tugged on the bell rope at Mahoning Presbyterian church but nothing happened. Investigation disclosed the clapper had been stolen from the steeple.

STOCKS ADVANCE IN MODEST RALLY

New York, Aug. 2 (AP)—A modest rally, on increased turnover, pushed stock market leaders up fractions to a point or more today.

Utilities assumed leadership after the list had gotten away to a poor start. The buying then spread to most other divisions. Toward the final hour prices were near their best.

Transfers were at the rate of approximately 1,000,000 shares.

CRASHES THEN KISSES

McKeesport, Pa., Aug. 2 (AP)—Mrs. Robert S. Soles told police "the big so-and-so gave me a hug and a kiss" after his car collided with hers. A 36-year-old man she named as the kissing driver was held on charges of drunken driving.

1ST WHEAT CROP PAYMENTS ARE MADE IN STATE

Harrisburg, Aug. 2 (AP)—The first crop insurance payments to Pennsylvania farmers, based on losses in wheat crops, are being made by the federal government to 75 wheat growers.

Their losses on wheat planted in 1939 and harvested this year ranged from 12 to 225 bushels. The insurance was taken out with the Federal Crop Insurance corporation when the grain was sown last fall.

The farmers will receive payments either in wheat or in cash equal to the local market value of the loss. The loss totals about 9,000 bushels, the agricultural conservation office reports, and figures the average price at 62 cents a bushel.

The wheat growers were assured of getting 75 per cent of a normal crop. Anything less than three-fourths of a normal crop is made up by the federal agency. A "normal" crop is figured over a ten-year period, adjusted for county averages. The insurance costs about a half-bushel an acre, and was sold last year in Pennsylvania's 26 chief wheat-producing counties.

Winter took its toll of the wheat crop, accounting for 60 per cent of the losses to the 75 farmers.

The remaining 40 per cent was credited to hail, Hessian fly and the well-known drought.

Re-Organization

The state Department of Agriculture slowly is being re-organized under its new secretary, John H. Light, for years secretary of the state Grange.

The Lancaster cabinet member points out that the department's appropriation for the 1939-41 biennium was slashed by $327,000. That means that instead of the 407 employees in his department when he took office in January, there will be closer to 340. Light said.

Some jobs in the higher brackets will be eliminated, the secretary said, but thus far most of the places left unfilled are clerical.

Light quickly explained that no services of the department would be curtailed, and added that he and Deputy Secretary W. S. Hagar had taken on many extra duties.

Price Indexes Abandoned

The federal-state crop reporting service has abandoned its former price indexes, used for comparing levels with what have been considered normal years, and adopted more recent indexes.

For instance, the service was using 62 cents as the price of milk sold by the farmer direct to the consumer, using the base period of August 1909 to July 1914. Now it is 10.9 cents.

The 1924-28 marketing prices used in the old index for other commodities have given way to those of 1933-37.

However, it is interesting to note that on nearly every farm product, excepting milk, eggs and wool, and every animal excepting beef cattle and milk cows, the prices from 1910 to 1914 were considerably higher than they are at present. As an example, wheat averaged 95 cents a bushel then. Now it is 66 cents.

EIGHT INJURED WHEN SCAFFOLDING COLLAPSES

New York, Aug. 2 (AP)—Eight men were injured, one seriously when a third-floor scaffolding on a new Brooklyn building collapsed today, dumping off a crew of 18 workmen.

The main rope holding up one end of the scaffolding snapped. Some of the workmen fell in a pile-up on the ground, others landed on the second and first floor girders and a few managed to hang on the structure until they could drop off safely.

The official police report said the accident was due to overloading the scaffolding.

Joseph Patrola, 54, of Brooklyn, was removed to a hospital with spine and head injuries. Others injured were treated at the scene and returned to work or to their homes.

GRADY NOMINATED FOR FEDERAL POST

Washington, Aug. 2 (AP)—Henry F. Grady, former dean of the college of commerce of the University of California, was nominated by President Roosevelt today to be assistant secretary of state in charge of the reciprocal trade agreements section.

Grady, whose appointment is subject to senate confirmation, is now vice chairman of the United States tariff commission. In the state department, he would succeed Francis B. Sayre, recently named high commissioner to the Philippines.

BRITAIN ON GUARD AGAINST DRESSY SABOTEURS

London (AP)—After six months' countryside terrorism by the Irish Republican Army officials in Whitehall's gloomy government offices have realized there's nothing to stop anyone of reasonably good appearance from leaving a bomb in one of their corridors.

Steps have been taken. Now all visitors to various department buildings must fill in a "Who-Why-What-Where-When?" ticket before being admitted and theoretically cannot leave again without it.

DETROIT BEATS RUFFING FIRST TIME SINCE '37

By JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

Reputations may be priceless but three of baseball's foremost pitchers will tell you today that this is just idle prattle in the major league arenas.

It's disrespectful enough that the world champion New York Yankees and the National league leading Cincinnati Reds should be sullied on the same day. Yet this not only happened Tuesday with their respective pitching technicians, Red Ruffing and Paul Derringer, in the control booth, but the same short-circuit cut down young Bob Feller.

Ruffing had not been beaten by the Detroit Tigers since June 1937 and had won 13 consecutive games from the Bengals but Del Baker's surly Tiger troupe routed him 5-2 in their series opener at New York. The New York Giants, who may look desperate in their league standings, preserved one claim of distinction by edging out the Reds 5-4 in 10 innings and remaining the only team which holds a margin over the Reds for the season. They have won eight of their 14 games with Cincinnati.

Derringer went the route for the Reds. It was Cincinnati's first setback in 11 games.

Feller's nemesis was young Bobby Doerr, who hit two home runs, the second with the bases loaded, to pace the Boston Red Sox to a 7-5 triumph over the Cleveland Indians.

The first day of August also popped up with a couple of other features. For one thing Philip K. Wrigley, owner of the Chicago Cubs, chose to see his hirelings perform—an unusual pastime for him. Dizzy Dean's $185,000 throwing arm took this occasion to go on the blink again and Manager Gabby Hartnett pushed Larry French into action. The veteran lefthander, who had complained to Wrigley the day before that he wasn't getting enough work, thereupon pitched the Cubs to a 6-2 victory over the Phillies.

For another there was an outburst of 15 triplets—baseball's rarest hit—in seven of the day's eight games including five in the St. Louis Cardinals test with the Boston Bees. Johnny Mize hit two with men on base and the Martins, Stu and Pep, each contributed one as St. Louis won 4-3.

Dixie Walker hit two for the Dodgers, driving in two runs, as Brooklyn beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-3.

In the American league Tony Giuliani, Washington catcher, hit a three-bagger with the bases loaded in the fifth to lead the Senators to a 7-5 victory over the St. Louis Browns.

The Chicago White Sox downed the Philadelphia Athletics 4-1.

Acme and Shaners In League Victories

A much improved Acme softball team defeated the Gas company in a league game on the college field Tuesday evening 10-7.

The Acme took the lead by scoring three runs in the fourth and a pair in the fifth only to have the Gas-men push over four runs in the sixth. Two runs in the last of the sixth sewed up the contest for the Acme. Weimer and Schoenkoph led their respective teams at bat with three hits apiece.

Shaners took advantage of a bit of loose fielding on the part of the Times aggregation and scored five runs in the third inning to score a 5-1 decision on the playground.

The lineups: Shaner: Tawney, sf; Martin, 3b; Tate, ss; Wright, lf; Woodward, c; Hughes, 1b; Ridinger, p; McClellan, c; Shaner, 2b; Bucher and R. Shaner, rf; Times—W. Small, 3b; J. Tate, lf; Noel, 1b; Bushman, cf; Oyler, sf; N. Small, 2b; Keefer, ss; Pensinger and D. Knox, rf; S. Knox, c; Newbould, p.

This evening the Acme and Times will meet in the playground while the A. and P. and F. and T. clash on the college field.

PAVED WITH "GOLD"

Catasauqua, Pa., Aug. 2 (AP).—Main street was paved with gold for children who found $500 lying there—but only for a short time. Three small sisters found $400, then a nine-year-old boy found $100. O. C. Roth, of nearby Allentown, claimed the money after learning of its discovery through a newspaper advertisement. He said he collected from a Catasauqua bank for the sale of a house and lost part of the money on the way home.

Barrow Denies Yanks Are on Auction Block

New York, Aug. 2 (AP).—Between issuing flat denials that the New York Yankees are for sale, President Ed Barrow is getting a lot of quiet amusement out of a loose statement by Tris Speaker that he could name 15 better outfielders than Joe DiMaggio.

When he made this extravagant assertion the old "Grey Eagle" meant that baseball since it began had produced 15 more brilliant, fly-hawks than DiMaggio.

"That's a foolish statement for 'Old Spoke' to make," chuckled the Yankees' veteran head. "I've been watching them come and go longer than he has, and as a matter of fact he can name just one better fielding outfielder than DiMaggio is today. That was Speaker, himself."

"I won't take it away from 'Spoke.' He was a marvel, the best there ever will be."

Barrow would like for Speaker to produce his list of 15, and also would like to learn where the rumor arose that anyone with five or six million dollars in cash money could step up and purchase the entire Yankee baseball empire, like buying stamps.

"The Yankees absolutely are not for sale," he declared. "They can't be sold, because Colonel Jacob Ruppert's will expressly stipulates that they not be sold or the system broken up."

Says St. Louis Teams Will Not Be Moved

Chicago, Aug. 2 (AP).—President William Harridge stepped forth today to neatly dispose of all this talk about moving the St. Louis Browns of the American league to another city.

Discussing for the first time the many reports that a re-alignment to cities in the circuit was contemplated, Harridge said there "definitely is no move on foot to move the Browns or any other team in the league to another city."

Poor attendance in St. Louis this season has inspired much talk of transferring the Browns or the Cards of the National league to Milwaukee or Kansas City.

PAINFUL PITCH

Ligonier, Pa., Aug. 2 (AP)—Jacob Wolford's curve ball didn't break but his arm did. The Waterford pitcher fell in pain as the ball sped toward home plate where a batter for the opposing Laughlinton team stood poised. X-ray pictures disclosed a fracture between the shoulder and elbow which physicians said probably was caused by severe muscle pressure.

The Oregon logger is also called a "jungle-buzzard," a "timber-beast," a "timberhound," a "woods savage," a "brush-cat," or a "lumberjack."

SAYS AMERICA LACKS TEACHERS

State College, Pa., Aug. 2 (AP).—Waiting lists to the contrary, a state Education department official reports there never has been a time in the history of public education in America when there was such a scarcity of adequately prepared secondary school teachers.

This statement was made Tuesday before an annual conference of school superintendents and principals by Dr. Henry Klonower, director of teacher education and certification.

Many statements about long waiting lists are misleading, asserted Doctor Klonower. He predicted a close inspection would show a vast majority of those seeking jobs already were employed but wanted salary improvements or had failed to have adequate preparation.

The speaker predicted that in addition to a thorough grounding in subject matter and knowledge of teaching techniques and adolescent psychology, the teacher of the future would have to know the pupil, his home and ambitions of young people.

A two-year post-graduate course for high school graduates to "tide them over" an adjustment period between school and employment was urged before the conference by Dr. John L. Lounsbury, principal of the Long Beach, California, junior college.

Dr. Harry Elmer Barnes, educator, historian and editor, told the gathering that "if the United States can keep out of foreign war, democracy and capitalism stand a gambler's chance."

"If we succumb to British propaganda designed to entice us into a second world struggle," added Doctor Barnes, "democracy and free business enterprise are doomed. The emergency created by a new world struggle will require a fascist regime in America in which all our customary liberties will be surrendered, possibly never to be regained."

It is believed that John was the only one of Christ's disciples to escape martyrdom.

COUNTRY BARBER

The barber in the country is a chap that's good to know.

If by chance you're fond of fishing he can tell you where to go.

He knows when bass are striking and the kind of food they crave.

And will tell you all about it while he's giving you a shave.

There's a mallard nicely mounted just above his looking glass.

On the wall a hunter, pictured where a deer is apt to pass.

And if you show the slightest sign of interest in such things

The barber's conversation will have hooves and horns and wings.

The barber in the country isn't pruned in his shop.

If he hears the wild geese honking then his clippers he will drop.

And some day in the summer should on him you chance to call

He'll invite you up to see him and go shooting in the fall.

I like the city barber but his hands and cheeks are pale

And the news he has to offer as a rule is two days stale;

But the little country barber has a host of joys to share

In the pleasant twenty minutes you are sitting in his chair.

Forges $2 Check and Ends With $675 Ring

Reading, Pa., Aug. 2 (AP)—Detectives tried with an adding machine and a pair of calipers today to straighten out financial transactions Lieutenant Charles Dentith said involved running $2 from a forged check into a $675 diamond ring.

Dentith said John Stahl, New Berlinville youth held in $1,000 bail, admitted cashing a forged check with his mother's name at a meat store. The Lieutenant asserted Stahl then:

1 Bought a $50 watch, making a $2 down payment.

2 Traded the watch for a more expensive watch at another jeweler's.

3 Bought a $75 vanity set, with the second watch as security.

4 Bought a $125 diamond ring, with the vanity as security.

5 Turned in the diamond from this ring toward a $675 diamond ring and sold diamond No. 2 for cash and the setting for gold.

In each transaction, Dentith said, Stahl gave a few dollars in cash—and that's what has the police confused. Dentith said he is considering asking the help of the city controller.

Meanwhile, Justice of the Peace Arthur Aumen, of Exeter township, called Dentith and said Stahl owed him $1250 fine and costs on a drunken driving charge—and how about it?

"Sure," Dentith said the youth replied, "I'll give him a check."

BRIEF BENEFACITOR

Pittsburgh, Aug. 2 (AP)—Only nine words written on the face of a promissory note by W. O. Harvey, of Springdale, willed his $22,000 estate to his wife, Margaret.

THE WELL STORED MIND

IT IS amazing how much a small area, such as the mind has, will contain. There is simply no limit to what it will hold! No one has ever had to worry about a place to put an idea in his mind, nor has this mind ever refused to take in information of any kind that came to it willingly. Intelligence is not measured by the size of a man's brain. However, big ideas often need a deal of space, and so crowd out unimportant, or needless information. Intelligent people do not clutter up their brains with useless material. On the other hand they keep unloading their ideas so that others may benefit from them. That's what ideas were put in the world for!

Montaigne in speaking of Socrates said: "His end was to store us with things and furnish us with precepts, which really more substantially and jointly serve our life."

In the wild animal kingdom each inhabitant looks after himself, stores up food and arranges shelter for the future. They only think of their physical well being. But man is different. He has a mental and spiritual kingdom left to his care. He has to have a well stored mind to defend him against the many changes of fortune and circumstance, and a developed spiritual nature to guard him against fear and against the onslaughts of ignorance and superstition.

The mind can look deep into the well of human nature, and there see itself in all its wonderful manifestations. It is a life-time job to learn about ourselves, not to mention learning about others, whose form, and much in substance, we also are.

We need this well stored mind as our stock in trade. It is our capital. It is our refuge. It is our court of last resort. In it is the seat of all our happiness, all our power. If we don't respect it, we are merely vassals!

Meet Mr. Lochinvar

By Marie Blizard

YESTERDAY: Philip Callen persuades Cecily to let him stay at Darelea since she brought the situation on herself. One night, Cecily finds a pleasant young man in her bookshop who says HIS name is Philip Callen.

Chapter 11
Lochinvar In Person

Cecily picked up her cup. It danced on the saucer as she put it back when he had spoken.

"Philip Callen?" she repeated slowly and with assumed sweetness. "Shall I tell you my name or shall I make up one, too?"

"Don't you like it?"

"It's too common. So many people seem to have it. I won't insist on your telling me. I don't wish to probe," she added sedately.

He leaned toward her and spoke in a theatrical whisper:

"Thankee, lady. You've treated me right and I'll do the same. I'm a bad man from the wild West! I'm wanted! The posse is after me for holding up the stage coach from Beverly Hills to Los Angeles! But I got a head start this mawnin'. Where am I?"

Cecily laughed at his nonsense and then, catching herself, she said sarcastically, "Congratulations, Jesse James! This is the rockbound coast of Maine."

"My, my, how time does fly! But look here, ma'am, my name isn't Jesse James."

"I'm not good at guessing games," she replied.

"Now, let's us think of something more attractive. How about Lochinvar? He was a gallant Westerner."

"A bold one, too," she agreed, and saw that it was nearly ten-thirty.

She got up.

"I'm afraid that I can't offer you my hospitality any longer." She had forgotten that she hadn't offered it in the first place.

He picked up a hat that looked as though it had seen rough traveling across the country by pony express.

"I don't like to turn you out into the night. May I offer you a small loan?"

Cecily took two dollars from her purse and held them out to him.

He looked at her face and something warm came into her breast. She thought: He likes me!

He bowed deeply and, with the gesture, he took the bills, slipping them carelessly into his pocket.

"Thank you," he said simply. "Merely a loan, of course."

He bowed again. Cecily could have sworn there was a flourish to the manner in which he swept his hat rakishly onto the side of his head as he went off toward the inn.

She closed the door in back of her and set out homeward toward Darelea, forgetting the ball of white yarn.

Unreality

The rain had cleared away in the night and the bright morning sun fell on Cecily's eyes, waking her to the day and a realization that she anticipated that day. She lay quiet for a few minutes assembling the memory that eluded her yet quickened her senses. She felt eager and suddenly alive, as though she wanted to go out to meet something.

It was a new feeling that pervaded her, and with it came a rush of clear thinking, of suddenly seeing herself as she had been during the last weeks. She realized that she had insulated herself against the change that had come into her life since the day that she had learned she was no longer financially independent. She had accepted things without making them a part of her. The only thing that had been read was the founding of the shop.

She had refused to make herself a vivid part of anything that was happening to her. Everything had had the quality of unreality.

And principally among these was Philip Callen.

Philip Callen even now, was sleeping under the same roof. An impostor—because he was there as a guest, her aunt's welcome guest because he was her "fiancee."

Cecily thought: I must do something about it. I will tell Aunt Olivia the truth.

She was suddenly ashamed that she had permitted the thing to get on as it had. Yet, she reasoned justly, it had done no harm. Philip Callen had added immeasurably to the gaiety of the household. He made himself a useful and pleasant guest and he was well liked.

Allene Bixby made no secret that she had a crush on him. Karen Willoughby had already invited him—with Cecily, of course—for a week-end at her parents' home at Southampton later in the season.

Cecily had decided to let it go on. Philip would surely not remain at Darelea for more than a few days and when he left, it would be a forgotten incident.

A feeling of dislike and distrust of him thrust itself into her thoughts. She wanted to be fair, but search as she would, she could find no tangible reason. At first, she had expected that he would, in her own words, take advantage of the situation, to make passes at her. Yet when she was alone with him, his attitude was that he was amused rather than intrigued with her. In the presence of others, he was a trifle more attentive to her. That was all.

Suddenly the memory of his eyes when he didn't know he was being observed came back to her. They always seemed to narrow a trifle as though they were calculating something.

That small sign was a danger signal to Cecily and, for all that she could not imagine what he was calculating, she decided to go to Olivia with the truth. She would do it that night.

Having disposed of her resolution, her thoughts turned to the more pleasant immediate future. And to the night before.

"Lochinvar, indeed!" she said, and was impatient to be up.

In her closet her frocks were arranged in a neat row. She selected a bright blue linen without consciously thinking that her gray eyes took on a blue light reflected from the tone of the fabric.

She brushed her tawny hair until it shone and tied a blue kerchief over it. She put on her flat-heeled moccasins and took them off again, donning instead a pair of high-heeled sandals. Looked like somebody's little girl, did she?

It was scarcely eight when she ran down the stairs. She was the earliest riser at Darelea.

"Rosemary"

There was a letter at her breakfast place. She opened it eagerly. Wilson had returned with the evening mail while she was out the night before and, in her excited mood on her return, she had forgotten to ask if there had been any for her.

A newspaper clipping fell out with the letter.

Both were from Jean Tuthill.

"We miss you darling," Jean wrote, "but we envy you. It's been beastly in New York. We thank heaven for the coolth of your apartment which Hilda adores." There was more about the activities of Cecily's group of friends. At another time, she would have felt a wave of nostalgia for them. Today, her interest was no further than where she was. She turned the pages, reading:

"Thanks for the bits of news from Vickersport," Jean went on. "Don't forget to tell me when you have other guests. It's hard to fill the newspaper columns during this weather and every little bit helps. I'm enclosing a clipping of an item out of your last letter."

Cecily had written that Philip Callen was a house-guest. She had added no details. She picked up the clipping.

It was dated nearly a week before and read:

Conspicuously absent at the gay parties attendant on Tennis Week at Newport are those three popular debutantes, Gloria Watts, Allene Bixby and Karen Willoughby who are house-partying in Maine. They are the guests of Gloria's mother, Mme. Olivia Darrell of the Metropolitan, whose palatial summer home, Darelea, at Vickersport is famed for its almost constant roster of celebrated guests. A recent addition to the party is Philip Callen, well-known author.

Later in the season, Mme. Darrell will entertain a party of fellow artists of the Met. This is an annual custom at Darelea to which Vickersport looks forward. During the closing week of the summer colony season, a concert is given by Mme. Darrell and her guests and the proceeds are given to the local charities. Word reaches us that this affair is comparable in brilliance to the more ambitious projects of the New York season. It's an occasion for diamond tiaras and Paris gowns and the wealthy colony which summers at Vickersport puts aside its cottons and wools to blossom on this occasion.

Cecily read it hastily and tucked it into her pocket, glad that she had been able to give Jean a bit of news.

Her footsteps hastened along the main street of the village, impelled by an urge that she refused to put into words. She wanted to get to the shop before Laura arrived. There might be—there just might be—a message for her there. What the message would be, she had no idea. Or if there would be one.

There was.

Slipped under her door was a small white envelope.

With mounting excitement, she picked it up and opened it.

There was a sheet of blank paper enclosing two crisp one dollar bills and a small, faded sprig. That was all.

She held the sprig with its dried blossom in her hand. "It's Rosemary," she said. And then, "Rosemary is for remembrance."

Continued tomorrow.

JAILBIRD

New York—"Blackie," a whistling parrot who helps his owner, Dominic Palugi, 77, run a fortune-telling business by picking the fateful cards for patrons, couldn't foresee his own future. The parrot and Palugi were given a one-day jail sentence for peddling without a license. Blackie perched on a cell and whistled "My Time Is Your Time."

DOCTOR'S TURN

Indianapolis.—Helping take out a patient's appendix, Dr. Gerald Mares, Methodist hospital interne, felt a sharp pain in his right side. Other internes examined him and found he had appendicitis. In less than three hours, he had his own appendix taken out.

NOT HUNGRY

Emigrant, Mont.—Mrs. Margaret Vink, 77-year-old widow, came on two rattlesnakes behind a cookie tin while she was getting breakfast. She went after them with a broom, but that only made them buzz the louder. So she stunned them with a piece of stove-wood, swept them outdoors and welded an ax. She tossed the heads in the kitchen stove, but by that time she had lost her appetite.

CUM LAUDE

Houston, Tex.—A "gate crasher" attended the police rookie school and was graduated with honors. He had taken the place of a certified applicant who had got another job. Officials put him on the eligible list but wouldn't tell his name.

LOST LABOR

Omaha, Neb.—Alfred Bihler wishes safecrackers had tried the handle on his safe before they went to work on the combination. He told police they battered the strongbox in an unsuccessful attempt to open it. It was unlocked.

QUICK STRIP

Valley City, N. D.—Here's a way of getting undressed quickly but Andrew Wilson, 70, a farmer, doesn't recommend it: His overalls caught in a tractor drive shaft. When he recovered consciousness, all he had on was his shoes and shirt cuffs. The tractor was a block away with the rest of his clothes. All he got was a bump.

U. S. SENATE APPROVES

DONATION OF 4 TRACTS
Washington, Aug. 2 (AP)—The senate approved Tuesday the donation to the United States of four small tracts of land at Antietam battlefield, in Maryland.

The tracts now are known as Philadelphia Brigade park, the Fifty-Ninth New York monument, the Lee Memorial plat, site of the headquarters of Gen. Robert E. Lee and the Maryland state plat, where some of the hardest fighting of the battle occurred.

A bill by Senators Radcliffe and Tydings, democrats, Maryland, authorizing the donations, still is subject to house action.

CONSCIENCE WINS

Mahanoy City, Pa., Aug. 2 (AP)—A ten-year-old case of conscience brought $3 in an anonymous letter to the Schuylkill Transportation company with this explanation: "It is in payment of riding your bus lines, 10 or more years ago, without paying the fare. But only one evening. I think the fare was not this much, but I'd better pay too much than too little."

DRYS PROMISE COURT ACTION ON OPTION ISSUE

Huntingdon, Pa., Aug. 2 (AP)—The Rev. O. B. Paulson, local option director for the W.C.T.U. and the Men's Dry league, asserted today wet forces were attempting to block local option elections in 54 counties and warned that such moves would be challenged with court action.

He pointed out that court action already had been taken in Lycoming county to prevent an election and declared similar moves were under way in Dauphin and Centre counties. Wets in other counties, he said, were contemplating action as soon as a ruling is made in Lycoming county.

The wets, Mr. Paulson said, contend the legislature put "a joker" in the amended liquor control act of 1937 which would prohibit any voting this year because there are only 57 days between the primary and municipal election.

He explained the wet forces argued the act, which changed the local option elections from the municipal election date to the primary election date, would permit liquor referenda only if the primaries preceded the municipal election by 60 days.

Dry interpret the act, he said, as meaning that the 60-day clause applied to the time between the filing of petitions and the primary.

Mr. Paulson said the language of 1933, 1935 and 1936 under which the 1937 act was the same as acts referenda had been held and added:

"If the wets try to prevent the printing of the wet-dry question on the ballots we'll go into court."

He said that he spoke for the united dry forces representing the National Reform association, the Pennsylvania Anti-Saloon league, the Woman's Christian Temperance union, the Pennsylvania Men's Dry league and 10 other associated organizations.

Chuck Klein Fears Day His Career Ends
Pittsburgh, Aug. 2 (AP)—Baseball to Chuck Klein is a "tough racket" but he says the day they take his uniform for keeps will be the saddest of his life.
"Baseball is the only thing I know, and I'm going to keep on playing it as long as I can," declared the 33-year-old slugger who was left broken-hearted when set adrift by the lowly Phillies after 11 years of major league campaigning.
He's come back to life and is batting a .342 clip as the new driving spark of the Pirates but there'll be other years and Chuck knows a player just can't go on and on.
The slugger recalled he didn't sleep the night he was released by Philadelphia "but I knew I wasn't through as a big league player. All I needed was a chance to play regularly."
"When I get through in the majors I won't be too proud to carry on in the minors. Maybe I'll wind up being a manager somewhere and last a long time but as long as I can play I'll play, and I'm going to keep myself fit. The good and bad breaks have a way of evening up if you just stay in there working."

SCORE APPLY FOR CHISELERS PAY JOB AS STATE'S $500,000 BACK EXECUTIONER TO RELIEF DEPT.
Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 2 (AP)—A score of men, including a 24-year-old fellow with a "bad foot" who "can't stand what you call hard work," seek to succeed ailing Robert G. Elliott as Pennsylvania's official executioner.
Among other applicants for the job of throwing the switch on the state's electric chair are:
A discouraged painter, who offers cut rates.
A Pittsburgh electric welder and steel brazer whose last job "required the handling of 2,200 volts of electricity." He sent his photograph.
A would-be "electric cutler" and a 170-pound steel worker and farmer who wants to be "lexicuter."

The job pays $250 per switch throw, plus $150 for each subsequent execution on the same night.
None of the applicants may get the job. "Mr. X," an understudy to Elliott, is standing by and probably will send to death the next batch of condemned criminals marked for the electric chair at Rockview penitentiary. Bellefonte. No executions are scheduled until late next month, the Pennsylvania pardon board having reviewed six men this week.
Elliott, reported "getting better" in his New York home Tuesday night, has electrocuted 110 men and one woman in Pennsylvania since 1926 and also served other eastern states as executioner. His last execution in this state was on April 24—Ernest M. Hipple, convicted of murder in Sullivan county.
Applications for Elliott's job began arriving last year, when it was reported he would retire. And still they come.
Warden Stanley P. Ashe, of Western Penitentiary, handles them. He isn't telling "who the new executioner will be until he's needed."

In a letter to the then Gov. George H. Earle in 1938, one applicant wrote:
"I am a painter by trade and the work is not steady and it is very discouraging at times. I have never been aristed in my life, so I feel I could perform the same service to the state of Pennsylvania at a less cost to the state as it is now. Beside it would help me out and I would be of service to my state."
"If you can arrange for me this appointment I will always be at your service."

WRONG NUMBERS
McKeesport, Pa., Aug. 2 (AP)—Tourists whizzing through the city are amazed by signs announcing the speed limit at 125 miles. Vandals spent several nights recently painting "ones" before the 25's on warnings. Police Chief John J. Whalen ordered his men to track down persons responsible for the trouble, reminding such an act was punishable by a $100 fine and 99 days in jail.

feet, brown fur and underslung lower jaw.
When it killed ten chickens Tuesday, Fritz sent two beagle hounds to do battle. Both dogs retreated, one badly injured. Fritz pinned the beast with a pitchfork, caged it and put it on display at a firemen's carnival. He charged nickel admission, hoping to compensate for his lost chickens.
Carnival crowds marveled, but none could name the "whatstt."

PICNIC SURPRISE
Hershey, Pa., Aug. 2 (AP)—Mrs. Mary Rutter came here for a picnic and left with a five-pound daughter. The child was born in a hospital shortly after Mrs. Rutter and her husband arrived from Pittstown for the outing.
